How the Hub works

Your community collectively generates, consumes and shares energy produced within the Hub. You are still connected to the national grid to top-up or export energy when necessary.

Join Indigo Power and become a member of your community energy hub.

A community energy hub is a community or town working together to create and share electricity. Indigo Power customers will be able to keep track of energy shared with their neighbours, and we'll be building larger solar and battery systems to supply communities with top-up power.

Every community energy hub remains connected to the Australian electricity network, so you've always got power when you need it.

About the Plan

The Community Energy Hub Plan is how you buy your electricity from us. When you sign up to the Plan you'll be added to your local community energy hub.

We'll keep track of your hub's energy sharing, and once it has over 100 members, your hub will be in the running for our community rewards program.
